

SUBWAY TRAINS COME TO A STOP AS LIGHTS GO OUT

No Explanation Made of Block Except That Fuse
Had Blown Out.

A mysterious accident to a subway train made all the more mysterious by the fact that all information regarding the matter was immediately hushed up by the officials, thwarting even the police in their endeavor to glean the facts, occurred at 1:15 o'clock at the Grand Central Station.

The entire system between Ninety-sixth street and the City Hall station was either crippled completely for the time being, or the current was purposefully shut down, with the result that cars were plunged in darkness, and the long delay which followed kept passengers involuntarily prisoners within the stifling confines of the cars.

All that could be learned is that a train running into the Forty-second street station on the southbound rails came to a sudden stop immediately following a loud detonation, accompanied by a vivid flash of electricity from beneath the train. There was a cloud of smoke, a pungent odor; then the lights went out, leaving the passengers, who had been violently shaken out of their seats, to shift for themselves in darkness, frightened by the uncertainty of their position.

It appeared to all the passengers then that the entire tunnel was dark, for the lights of other trains then visible on the opposite tracks became extinguished. Train bands, motorman and conductor leaped from the stalled first train and appeared to be as frightened as the passengers by the explosion and the following darkness.

When order was restored and discipline re-established lanterns were lighted, and with these men were sent forward along the tracks to station signals, while other men crawled beneath the train searching for the seat of trouble, armed with extinguishers to check a possible fire.

In the mean time the heat in the underground passage became almost unbearable. Several women passengers gave early evidence of discomfort and were kept in a revived condition only by vigorous fanning by their escorts. This scene was frequently lighted up by passengers in the stalled train who struck matches and groped their way along the aisles.

Finally the lights went up and the power was turned on, when the blockaded, which had lasted for fully thirty minutes, was raised.

The police made a systematic endeavor to learn the actual cause of the trouble. Various precincts along the route of the subway were searched, but all inquiries at the several points resulted in no information being forthcoming.

At the Grand Central Station all the police could learn was that a fuse had blown out. Appeal to the officials of the road themselves brought no further information. They agreed that the matter was of slight concern, as "only a fuse had blown out."

There was one report that a man had been killed on the tracks.

CHASED WOMAN WITH CHICKENS THROUGH STREET

Greenberg Says that Mrs.
Braun Stole Them and She Is Arrested.

There was a lively chase to-day on East One Hundred and Second street, as a preliminary to the arrest of Mrs. Ita Braun, of No. 211 East Ninety-second street, for the alleged theft of two chickens.

Isaac Greenberg sells chickens, turkeys and kosher meats at No. 218 East One Hundred and Second street. He had a large crowd about his place this morning, mostly women. They were laughing and chattering away when Greenberg's eyes began to bulge and he began to sputter and threatened to explode. He saw Mrs. Braun, who was carrying two fat chickens in her basket.

He started toward her and she ran. Arming himself with a dressed turkey, he clung to her, shouting in the air, "You stole my chickens!" and after her, shouting "Go!" "Go!" which in Yiddish means "Go!"

The customers fled away from the store as if by magic and trailed along in the wake of the frantic merchant and his quarry, all taking up the cry of "Go!"

Some one had notified Sergt. Jackson, at the East One Hundred and Fourth street station, of the trouble, and he sent Policeman Winters. The fleeing woman, terrified beyond measure, finally dropped the two chickens, but getting out of this tangle did not do her much good, as she ran directly into the arms of the policeman.

She tearfully protested her innocence, declaring that she bought the chickens and paid for them, and ran because when she heard the noise the merchant and others began to make in their strange language, she didn't know what they might do to her.

Greenberg, in the presence of fully one hundred gossamering, jabbering witnesses at the police station, preferred a charge of petty larceny against Mrs. Braun, and she will be arraigned in the Harlem court.

PICKPOCKET. SAY POLICE.

Clerk, Says Man Arrested and Arraigned in Court.

Henry Rogers who says he is a clerk of No. 10 West twenty-first street, was a prisoner in the Centre Street Police Court to-day, charged with being a pickpocket.

According to Inspector McLaughlin, Rogers was arrested two years ago for a green goods swindle and gave bail, disappearing a few days afterward. The authorities sent the man to the Federal Bureau, but United States Detective Boyle, who had there and he was sent to Centre street.

Cornell Co-Ed Gets Degree and Becomes Cornell Man's Bride.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 22.—Three hours after receiving her degree as bachelor of law, Miss Ida Belle Rosbrook, Cornell, 26, was married to Alfred C. Weed, Cornell, 27, at the Presbyterian Church. Both are residents of Carthage, N. Y., and their romance is interwoven with many happy days passed at Cornell.

Miss Rosbrook was the only woman to receive a degree from the law school and one of the very few co-eds who have ever taken law at Cornell.

A HEALTHY OLD AGE

OFTEN THE BEST PART OF LIFE

Help for Women Passing Through Change of Life.

Providence has allotted us each at least seventy years in which to fulfill our mission in life, and it is generally our own fault if we die prematurely.

Mrs. Mary Koehne

Nervous exhaustion invites disease. This statement is the positive truth.

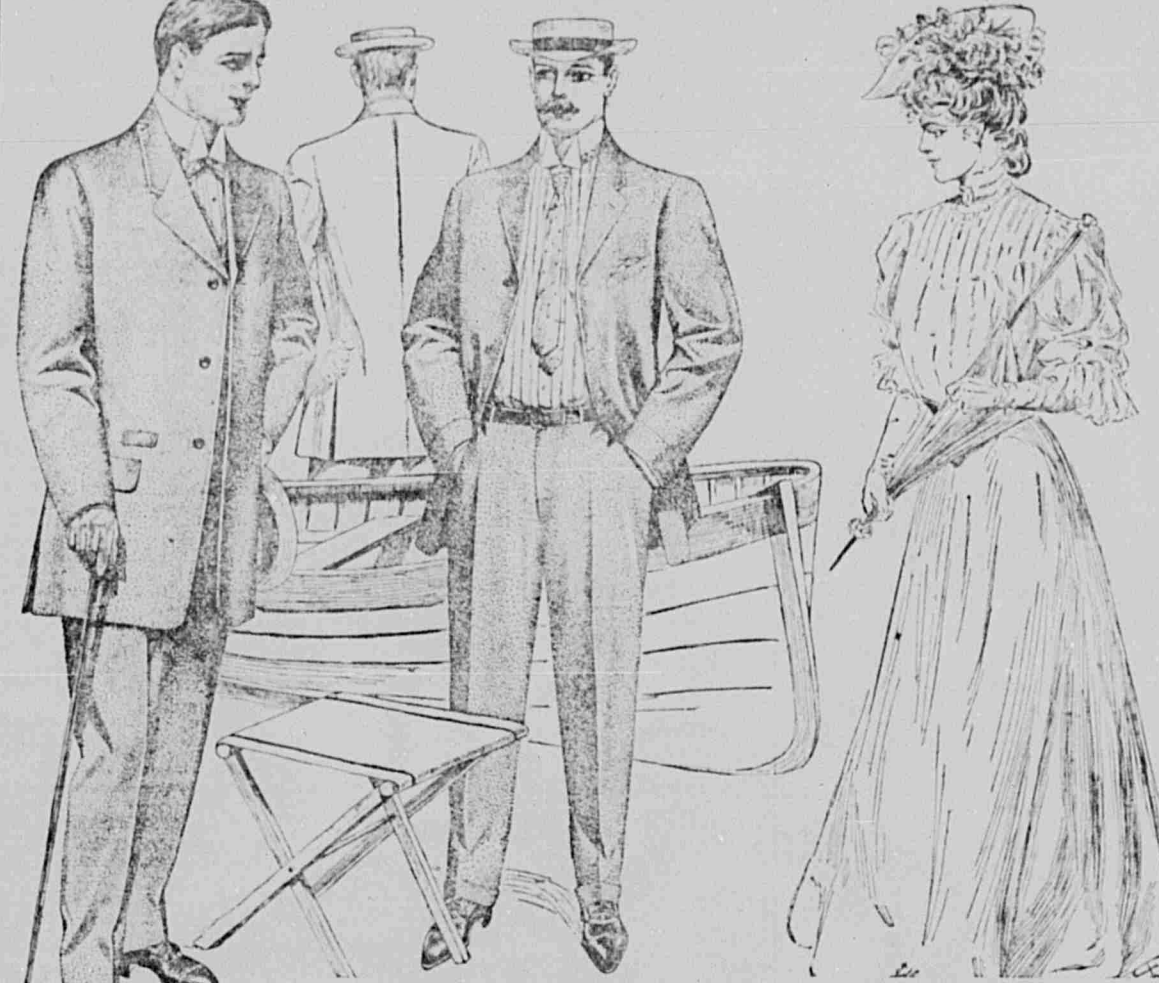

When everything becomes a burden and you cannot walk a few blocks without excessive fatigue, and you break out into perspiration easily, and your face flushes, and you grow excited and shaky at the least provocation, and you cannot bear to be crossed in anything, you are in danger; your nerves have given out; you need building up at once.

To build up woman's nervous system and during the period of change of life we know of no better medicine than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Here is an illustration. Mrs. Mary L. Koehne, 371 Garfield Avenue, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for years in my family and it never disappoints me when I feel that I am nearing the change of life I commenced treatment with it. I took in all about six bottles and it did me a great deal of good. It stopped my dizzy spells, pains in my back and the headaches with which I had suffered for months before taking the Compound. I feel that if it had not been for this great medicine for women that I should not have been alive to-day. It is splendid for women, old or young, and will surely cure all female disorders."

Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick and ailing women to write her for advice. Her great experience is at their service, free of cost.
